Describe your day on May 15, 2023. Tell us whatever you'd like at whatever length you'd like. We think future students will especially appreciate hearing about concrete details -- What can you see and hear from where you are right now? What did you do for fun today? Who did you spend time with? Did you cook or eat anything special? Did you work or do chores?

After I got out of class for the day, I decided to stop at a family members house not far from Hanover's campus and help them clean up around their property. While mowing their yard, I passed a tree that had an odd look to it as there seemed to be unusual colors dispersed throughout. After a further glance, I noticed the color was coming from some unusual looking red mite-like insects. I found this interesting as I have seen some smaller red insects before, but never any quite this size.

We'd also like to hear about what learning looks like for you. When you think of the Hanover classes that have mattered the most to you, what do you see? A specific classroom, lab, or studio? your favorite late-night study location? What about lessons learned at Hanover outside of the classroom -- do you see conversations over meals? locker room celebrations? shared community service? the streets of a foreign city during an off-campus class? If you're no longer on campus, what does learning look like now?

The engineering classrooms 103 & 120 in Science Hall are the classrooms that come to mind concerning learning and making memories. As these I have spent the most amount of time in and have learned the most concepts surrounding engineering within.

The "One Day in May" project preserves the everyday experiences of Hanoverians on an ordinary spring day (in this case, May 15, 2023).
