FOOTBALL MEN RECEIVE AWARDS

33 MEN TO BE HONORED FOR THEIR SERVICES ON THE 1929-30 FOOTBALL
TEAM

Last Friday morning in chapel thirty three men will be honored by the athletic department by receiving their rewards for services in the 1929-30 gridiron season. Incidentally a last tribute will be paid to the seven seniors who never again will wear the uniform of the red and blue on Wood's Field. In recognition of their noteworthy services a new type of senior letter sweater has been or rather will be, awarded. A white sweater with a blue block "H" and cardinal stripes on the sleeves denoting the years of service will be the new varsity insignia. Six of these will be of the coat sweater type and the other will be the regular slip over. In addition seven more men will win the coveted "H" for underclassmen's efforts, the usual award being given.

Another type of award that was adopted this year is the reserve letter. According to the sample that his writer has seen, they will be a lightweight red slipover with blue block "H". Five men will receive this award for their meritorious services on the gridiron that does not quite live up to the rigid qualifications for the regulation "H".

Freshmen and upperclassmen who did not appear in a sufficient number of games, and three managers will receive the customary numerals. In all fourteen numeral sweaters will be given out.

FACULTY TO PRESENT FIVE ACT PLAY.

The Hanover College faculty will put on a five act play, sometime late in February. Oliver Goldsmith's sparkling comedy "She Stoops to Conquer" is the play selected. Mrs. Parker will act as coach; Professor Martin will take charge of the lighting effects; Mrs. Kutz will be properties manager, and Mrs. Woodworth, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Rundle will work with the costumes. A large number of the remaining faculty members and their wives will form the cast. The makeup of the cast itself can be announced in the next issue of the Triangle.

Debating As An Aid To World Peace

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 12.—The Centro Espanol de Yale has just received notice from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace that it has made an allotment of funds to the organization to aid in meeting the expenses of a trip to South America by a team which will debate there in Spanish. This organization is composed of students in Yale University interested in public speaking and hearing Spanish for the purpose of improving their ability to understand the culture and conditions of the "other Americans" in order to help foster friendly international relations. The team, which will debate with South American universities, will leave the United States about June 20, will spend about twelve weeks in South America, and will return to this country in time for the opening of the college year.

The allotment has been made with the understanding that in addition to the purpose of stimulating friendly relations and better mutual understanding between the American and Latin-American students, the representatives of Yale will explain the work of the International Relations Clubs and where possible form such clubs in the South American universities they visit.

The project is a result of an incident in April, 1929, when a debating team of students from the University of Porto Rico visited Yale to debate in English. They met some of the members of the Centro espanol de Yale and expressed a desire to debate in Spanish if it were possible to find a group of students born in the United States and educated in Spanish solely in United States schools or colleges. The challenge was at once accepted and took place five days later at Yale.

This relationship with the University of Porto Rico has been continued with much interest and enthusiasm. In 1929 the Centro received and accepted a challenge to send three men to San Juan, Porto Rico, to debate one evening in English and the next in Spanish. Henry P. Bakewell, Yale '29, who was president of the club at the time of the first debate and who still held that office, sought and obtained financial support for the project from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The success of the debates and the possibilities of this type of work were commented upon by Dean W. F. O'Reilly of the University of Porto Rico, who said: "The undertaking was a complete success and justified every effort made in bringing it about. Each group showed a genuine like for the other. Sufficiently expanded and developed does not this state of feeling mean international peace."

Again this year, soon after college opened, another challenge was received and a debate will take place in Spanish in New Haven on April 28, between Yale and the University of Porto Rico.

Although Porto Rico is part of the United States territory, the language and problems are different in many respects from those in continental United States, and the effect of the meeting at San Juan was a feeling that Yale students of Spanish should try to assist in the fostering of friendly relations and forming of International Relations

VARSIY DEBATING TEAM SELECTED

EIGHT STUDENTS TO REPRESENT
HANOVER IN INTER-COL-LEGIATE DEBATING LEAGUE

Last Tuesday night, as a result of a competitive try out, seven men and one woman were chosen to represent Hanover in the inter-collegiate debating Triangle to be held in March. Three members constitute each team with one alternate, the affirmative meeting Earlham there and the negative meeting Indiana Central here.

The following men compose the affirmative team which will debate the subject: Resolved: That the United States should cooperate with Canada in constructing a great lakes ocean waterway via the St. Lawrence. Zaring Hudson, Paul Nicely, Joan M. Lewis, and Frank Olsen, alternate.

The negative team consists of Daniel Lewis, Wendell Thornton, Marjorie Aernhold, and Dana Shelby, alternate.

This year for the first time in many years Hanover is entered into a debating league. As an experiment Hanover will participate in one triangle composed of Earlham, Indiana Central and Hanover. If this year proves successful, next year Hanover will enter fully into inter-collegiate debating. According to the rules, each college will have two teams on the subject, the negative staying at home to meet the opposing affirmative, and the affirmative travel to meet the negative of another college in their floor. As a result, Indiana Central's negative will come to Hanover, Hanover's affirmative will meet the negative of Earlham at Richmond, and Earlham's affirmative go to Indianapolis to meet Indiana Central.

Prof. Conklin, head of the English department, and Miss Andrews are in charge of the debating teams. In an effort to raise the necessary finances for the teams, the faculty is presenting a widely appreciated play of Goldsmith's, "She Stoops to Conquer."

In addition to the varsity debating teams the Phil Union Literary Society is to sponsor a debate between the intramural teams on the same subject in March or April for the large Literary Society Debating Trophy. Last year the Alpha Delta Betas won the award, defeating the team in the finals. Every student in school is eligible for the intramural team whether he is a member of the varsity team or not. A great deal of hard fought forensic skirmishes are expected in this form of debate as well as the varsity debates.

Clubs in the republics to the south. With this in mind, Henry T. Clarke, '34, '30, has succeeded in obtaining the necessary financial support for the debates in South America.

A committee of members is at present assisting in making arrangements for the trials for the debating team. Within a few days the qualifications for eligibility, and time, place, and rules for conducting the trials will be announced.

The interesting point about this announcement is the fact that possibly in this idea the world peace advocates have found a way to increase the friendliness among nations. It would be indeed an honor and a tribute to the collegiate magnanimity of the world if by this method international relations would see to be rivals in the more important things and only seek friendly rivalry in debating and intellectual contests.

Glee Club Plans Several New Tours

NORTHERN INDIANA CONCERTS
AND LONG SPRING TOUR
CONTEMPLATED

Prof. Max Poland of the Music Department met with the Executive Committee of the Men's Glee Club to make arrangements for the annual trip which is made. It was suggested that a short trip in the northern part of the state be taken to raise some money in order that a longer trip might be taken in the spring. The cities which were mentioned as probable places in which to give concerts were Indianapolis, Marion, Muncie and Anderson although no definite arrangements have been made. We feel that this year is the best that has ever been at Hanover. Prof. Poland has increased the number in the club to thirty. The several new men added this year have showed noticeable improvement in the last few weeks. No matter where the trip is made we are sure that it will be a great success. The following is a list of the men in the Glee Club:

THE COLLEGE DREAM GIRL

"She is very beautiful and has shiny black hair and brown eyes. Our dream girl is versatile. She is not one of the silly, giggling, sentimental types. On the contrary, she is intelligent, cultured and a good conversationalist. She does not use cosmetics excessively and neither smokes nor drinks. She chooses those frocks which are suitable to her own type of beauty and she dresses faultlessly. She likes dancing, golf, tennis and bridge, plays the piano and sings well." Butler Collegian, Indianapolis, Ind.

Dr. Kutz and five students journeyed to Lexington, Ky., last Friday night to see the Panthers defeat Transylvania University. Those that made the trip were Walt Reed, Clare Tallman, Kenneth Smith, Lewis Smith and John M. Lewis.

Prof. Poland will leave soon to attend a musical recital at his Alma Mater, Ball State Teachers College.

Douglas "Gaga" Mills, sharp-shooting forward of the University of Illinois is captaining this year's basketball team.

PANTHERS TO ENCOUNTER INDIANA CENTRAL FRIDAY NIGHT IN AN EFFORT TO GAIN THIRD STRAIGHT

Last Friday night the Panthers invaded Lexington, Ky., and clawed their way to a 27-19 victory over Transylvania University in their home gymnasium.

Featured in the game was Wallin with three field goals and five free throws in gaining individual honors for high point man. Only the regular five played the game and although the score was 15-14 at the half and tied at 16-16 a few minutes afterwards at no time were the Money-men seriously threatened. The Panthers adapted a stiff zone defense that enabled them to hold the Transy netters at bay during the greater part of the game. The majority of the alien goals scored were long-distance shots and so well was the defense in the second half that our opponents only managed to garner two baskets. The Panthers were unaccustomed to the large floor and found some difficulty in adapting their style of play to the larger area. Capt. Telle contributed several nice long shots while Wallin and Rockwell and Naab contributed the rest. The Transy five was strong on the defensive and weak on offense. The Money-men although closely guarded garnered enough baskets to assure them of their fourth victory in five starts.

The real feature of the game was the sharp refereeing. The referee called a great deal of fouls but all of them were warranted. The Panthers gained the edge here and ultimately in the game by scoring the majority of their free throws. In fact each team contributed eight field goals while Hanover made eleven free throws to be Transy three. Chase, diminutive guard for Transy was their leading star although Taylor made four field goals and two foul shots.

Following is the lineup and summary:

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE BASKETBALLERS.

Wallin is high point man with 54 points in five games.

Hanover ranks first in state for defensive play.

The Panthers as a whole have scored 169 points in five games, an average of over 3 points a game.

"Swede" has made 22 baskets out of 48 attempts, and ten free throws out of 20.

All the opponents have scored 111, which is less than 23 points per game.

Hanover ranks fourth or fifth in state ranking for team offensive strength, in the same group as teams that have played ten games instead of five.

The Last Lap

Two weeks of school excepting the exam weeks remain until the semester is officially over. These coming two weeks can be likened to the last lap of a race in which there is an equal chance for each participant to cross the finish line a winner or well up among the leaders.

Many races have been won in the last lap by the so-called "dark horse," because the leader or the favorites faltered or grew careless and overconfident. In a like manner the attitude shown by a student in the last lap. Whether that estimate will be a flunk or barely passing or the "A" average all depends upon the will and the effort of the student. Whether two weeks may be a decisive factor for consideration when the time comes that grade may be higher or lower than his average of work during the greater part of the semester, the last effort shown by the student is the one that creates the best impression.

To the leaders in the race of education, meaning the "A" students, we have no advice merely commendation and the earnest wish that they display the same aptitude and ability in the last few weeks as the first fifteen. They too may falter and fall by the wayside. To those who have not done so well during the majority of the semester, there still remains an opportunity, though belated, to prove themselves capable of the advanced work. It is up to each individual now to decide and show the proofs accordingly whether they are in the group that go on or remain in the group of the "also rans."

Choosing That Course

As this is almost the end of the semester and time that the student may sign up for his next semester course it is a suitable time for him to be deciding what he will take for the next semester. It is the custom by the great majority of the students to take the easy subjects and let the ones of real worth go by. The type of students that come to college either come for the primary purpose of preparing themselves for some particular vocation or profession or to gain a broader and more comprehensive education in order to find himself fit to combat the worries and trials of the life after the commencement.

To be in a position to meet the world which is what you will find more evident in the world of today where there are three applicants for each position, you will find that a substantial education and especially a college education will be your best asset. An ignorance of the true values of the higher education your worst liability. It is up to you to decide into which category you shall fall in the days to come. In the group of those who went to college and graduated or those that went to college and came out with an EDUCATION. As far as the education part is concerned we realize that there is even a greater possibility in Hanover for that type of student. The subjects of real worth are here and is up to the individual to choose those that will help him.

Now is the time to constructively plan your college course with a certain view ahead so that we may be fully equipped to follow or chosen life work, whether it is the ministry, the law, or the rest of the professions invaluable to mankind.

So when the time comes to sign up for the next course choose those that will be of benefit to YOU rather than those that are considered easy spots in the curriculum.

Step Right Up Folks and

Win the Prize

Since we realize that all of you have been waiting patiently for the news of our stupendous contest the staff will divulge the nature of the contest. In an effort to pay a tribute to the ones in the college that can really write and an effort to stimulate interest in this organization the first installment of a popular but entirely original serial. For the student that writes the best second installment of this serial we will give a prize of one dollar and a stated number of points toward the grand prize which will be awarded to the individual that wins the most of the dollar prizes. The only rules of the organization's contest are as follows and although they are simple, if they are broken will mean that during the time of this contest the transgressor will be prohibited from participating further: RULE 1: All students are eligible except those who are at present members of the Triangle staff.

RULE 2.

All articles will be written under an assumed or pen name in order that there will be no possibility of prejudice. The real name of the author will be turned in to the editor of the Triangle in a sealed envelope which will not be opened until the winner of the week is decided.

RULE 3.

As many manuscripts as the student feels necessary may be offered.

RULE 4.

The manuscripts must be written legibly on one side of the paper, typewritten articles receiving the preference.

RULE 5.

The length, type of installment is not important. Originality and diction will be the deciding points. The type of story may be either comic, tragic, serious, or what the embryo author prefers.

RULE 6.

The judges will be four members of the staff, unknown, and their judgment will be absolutely final.

RULE 7.

The articles MUST BE IN THE TRIANGLE OFFICE before the dead line hour which will be announced each week. After that time all manuscripts will be discarded.

"Rhapsody In Blue"

As a reporter from the L Times, I entered the college town of H—, a little skeptical and might I add a tiny bit afraid. I had interviewed and observed students in the largest universities of our country without a qualm. I had been on brotherly terms with a certain All-American guard, I had torn around with a state famous prom-trotter to dances, so it was rather appalling to think that I an intimate of the collegiate elite, should feel in the pit of my stomach a surge of uneasiness.

What there was to be afraid of I did not know. This was an extremely small school, but one rich in tradition and custom. I had gathered a little dope before arriving on the scene I had heard tales of "that little dream school on a bluff above the river." I had at the time thought it rather maudlin sentiment, I had heard mentioned in the reminiscing of a grad, Delta Phi rock, Windy Falls, picnics, that twig latticed moon, that river by moonlight, and vague references to a certain friendly spirit and an intangible something that welded the students together. It sounded like a pretty keen place and I felt that in my attempt to get the lowdown concerning it, I would meet something unusual. Perhaps it was the fact that I had decided that the school would furnish a big "scoop" that caused the strange feeling inside of me.

I was to stay at the Theta Pi house and was welcomed by the brotherhood in a warm fashion. Before I go on further let me explain that it was Spring in H— and Spring takes in a good sized portion of Heaven if you are in H—. Now that I think back over these days, I have jumbled words in front of me describing a little of what it was, Balmly twilight, cigarettes, fireflies and bliss, a row of feet propped on the porch railing, delicious warmth, strains of music, blues, whines from the clarinet, "Mugs", the fraternity pooh, asleep on the steps, budding maples, pillow-laden dates, river bound, brothers sauntering down the sidewalk, dreamy thoughts of tomorrows lessons, inertia, an orange moon, in the twisted trees. Now that I look back, I can't blame myself for staying on and on there, just looking around and not finding anything exciting as I had expected ad not even caring. Boy, that was living.

But one day at dusk I was seated with the Theta Pi's on the porch watching the co-eds and their masculine shadows promenaded up the "Drag," when I startled the lazy brothers by announcing that I intended to start work. Either write the customary impression I had received of the school or else discover something new and develop a new phase of college life. I had scarcely made this ambitious statement when I noticed the brothers straighten up in their chairs and show more energy than I had ever witnessed before.

"There she is!" "Yeah, that's the one, the gal in blue, I told you about. 'I'll be hanged if I understand her.' 'She's a cold knockout, isn't she?'"

I looked at the subject of the excited comments. She was plenty cute, dressed in blue from her chic toque to her tiny shoes. I vaguely remembered seeing her somewhere before. I asked the boys about her and learned that she was staying at the hotel for two weeks. She had the unanimous approval of the male contingent, and the hearty disapproval of the females, which established her a complete success.

She dated naturally but the men thought her peculiar and didn't understand her. She haunted Windy Falls, going there and settling alone for hours on its brink. She had been seen on the campus alone at night wandering around, always shrouded in an atmosphere of mystery. She was called the "Rhapsody in Blue" since she seemed to have a passion for the color.

We talked about her till bedtime and then, completely overcome by fatigue and spring fever, strolled up stairs. I could not sleep. The face of the girl seemed branded on the wall before me. Where I had seen her before? What definite place did she have in my experience? I decided to go for a walk in the hopes that it might bring on sleep. It was a gorgeous night, full moon, and with a scent of honeysuckle around. The campus was perfect. Just as I reached the sundial, I stopped short, there with her face upturned, completely illuminated by the moonlight was the "Rhapsody in Blue." And then it dawned on me! She was Marg Devereux, an actress of fame who had Paris at her feet a decade ago. But, on second thought, this girl could not be so old.

I gave up the puzzle and went home. Just as I heard the clock strike three, I had reached a conclusion. The Rhapsody must be Devereux's daughter, but why was she here in this little college town acting so strangely and completely bewildering everyone? I was baffled but my last thought before I drifted into sleep was, "I shall see. I believe this is the Something I've been expecting to meet."

(Can you continue this?? If you think so, have the next installment in the Triangle office by Monday noon and it yours is the best, win the dollar prize.)

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Normal expenditures of the electric light and power companies for extensions, improvements and new generating facilities will call for approximately $800,000,000 in 1930.

The cement mills of this country produced in 1928, 176,000,000 barrels of Portland Cement worth $35,000,000. This cement, together with stone, sand and water would make a highway 72,000 miles long?

The Pennsylvania R. R. has ordered new locomotives that will have a maximum speed of 90 miles an hour and a capacity of 6,000 h.p. when used in pairs, as compared with the 4,000 rating under which they now operate?—Rose "Technic."

The high school boys in southern Indiana who tried to start a No-Shave club when their basketball team failed to win, need something more than encouragement. The club disbanded because of lack of beads. They should have 50 per cent for effort, however.

Donovan "Tubby" Moffett is the new head of the DePauw department of Physical education and director of Athletics; he succeeds W. L. "Bish" Hughes whose resignation will become effective in June. Raymond "Gaumy" Neal will take Hughes' place as head football coach and L. C. Buchelt will continue as head track and assistant football coach.

William A. Alexander, Georgia Tech, was elected president of the National Football Coaches' association at their annual convention in New York.

Charley Hiatt of the University of Pittsburgh who was the high-point man of the eastern schools last year is playing his last year as captain of that team.

Coach W. H. Thom's of Indiana centered his attention in wrestling practice last week in getting Aldridge and Bell in readiness for the invading Nebraska team who were to engage the Grimsen Wrestlers in a match Saturday night. It is expected to be one of the season's hardest matches as the Cornhuskers have rated among the premier teams of the western colleges.

GIRLS WHO WON W. A. A. AWARDS THIS YEAR PROVEN TO BE LEADERS IN ACTIVITIES IN LAST FEW YEARS.

Most of the Upperclassmen and Sophomores who made varsity soccer this sport's season have a list of athletic honors after their names:

Frances Allison, a Junior, is the only girl in the college who has made every varsity since she registered as a freshman, not only in soccer, but also in baseball and basketball.

Naomi Whitcomb made varsity soccer in '27; sub. in varsity basketball in '27; sub. in varsity soccer in '28; varsity basketball in '28 and varsity baseball in '28.

Hazel Boyd, a sophomore, made varsity soccer '28; honorable mention in basketball '28; sub. in varsity baseball '28.

Mildred Dugan, a sophomore made sub. in varsity soccer '28.

Grace Sies, a sophomore has varsity soccer '28 to her credit.

Amylie Seagraves, a senior, was sub. in varsity soccer '27.

Geneva Risk, a junior, made honorable mention in soccer '27; sub. in varsity baseball '27; sub. in varsity soccer '28; sub. in varsity basketball '28; varsity baseball '28.

Miriam Waggoner, a senior, made honorable mention soccer '27; varsity soccer '28; sub. in varsity basketball '28 and varsity baseball '28.

Margaret Euler, a sophomore, made varsity baseball '28.

Eight of the remaining members of varsity '29 are Freshman, and of course, they have had no opportunity to cover themselves with glory as yet, but they are all good fighters, and by the close of the next soccer season, many of them will have won more than one award of which to be proud.

An American is on the way home from Stratford-on-Avon, England, with what he claims is positive proof that Francis Bacon not only wrote all of Shakespeare's plays but also scattered his name through the pages of earl folios by using special styles of type.

With photographic copies of the pages of Shakespeare and Bacon masterpieces, the American believes he will settle once and for all the question of who wrote Shakespeare's plays.

Certain peculiarities in typography and various styles of initial and single letters are said to appear almost as a Francis Bacon "by-line" in the beginning of some of the plays.

Home Brew

As I sit here looking at one of Remington's products I am trying to think just what my public would like this week. I mean by that there are so many things I might tell you but I have only a limited amount of space. First I think we should congratulate our basketball team. Two out of three games in three days is pretty good. I guess the only reason we didn't win the other was due to the fact that Oakland City had a little better team than we did.

It looks like we ought to have a good chapel attendance for next two weeks. Figure that one out, or maybe I should draw you a picture.

The Bachelors' club seems to be still going strong. Secretly I'll bet the women are glad of it, and maybe these bachelors won't be so happy before long because these women must dance. Maybe I'll get a break after all.

As I look around the room the office here seems to be turned into well a very busy place.

Gosh I'll bet the ducks have been having a big time this week, but for myself I'd like to see the sun. I haven't seen it this year. The handle on the shovel has a big scratch in it so maybe I better quit, and watch for the homecoming of our basketball team.

Yours till the sun shines,

This divorce traffic in Nevada has netted the state a neat sum through the provision that one must establish a residence there in order to take advantage of the divorce law.

This same provision is now bringing about the advancement of aeronautics in that state. Aviation now provides the means for people to live in the state and yet visit frequently outside its boundaries.

Panthers Win One, Lose One On Three Day Trip Away

WALLIN AND ROCKWELL STAR ON THREE DAY TRIP AWAY

As a result of their week end tour this last week the Panthers are now represented in the state scoring columns with three victories out of four attempts. In the series the past week, the Moneymen trampled the Vincennes University five, lost to the Oaks, and nosed out the Engineers of Rose Poly. Each of the nine men that made the trip played in one or more of the games and each contributed their share towards the two victories. Wallin was easily the high point man of the tour, with Rockwell showing up well both in number of points scored and some exceptional floor work.

Hanover 52, Vincennes 14.
In the first game of the tour the Panthers overwhelmed the Vincennes University five by a huge score. Each man played a sterling game and the whole team showed excellent team work. Wallin was high point man with thirteen points and Rockwell came close behind with eleven. Every man played in this contest. Score at half was 20-6.

Oakland City 34, Hanover 20.
At Oakland City the Moneymen suffered their first defeat of the year at the hands of their traditional rivals. Oakland City wore the Panthers out by their man to man defense. The locals tired by their two hundred mile ride were unable to put forth their best efforts. Wallin scored high point honors with seven points for Hanover, while Patberg, Oakland City center, topped him for individual honors with four two pointers and four free throws. Even though we lost, the team threatened several times and at no time were the Oaks too confident of victory. The score at the half was 13 to five against the Hanoverians.

Hanover 32, Rose Poly 27
In the first half of this game the Panthers gained an 18-9 advantage that enabled them to offset the Engineer's attack in the second half and emerge victorious. Here again the combination of the fast man to man defense and the long arduous automobile trip wore out the Moneymen. However with the advantage the home team gained thru some fine work of Cooperider, Wallin and Telle the locals came out on the long end of the 32-27 score. Alexander of Rose Poly and Wallin of Hanover were the high point men with five goals and one one-pointer each.

Phi Gams Defeat

Alpha Delta Alphas

Last Tuesday afternoon the Phi Gams defeated the Alpha Delta Alphas in a thrilling intramural game 17-9. The original game that was played on the preceding Wednesday was protested due to an misinterpretation of the rules. The Alpha Delta Alphas, though the score might not imply it, played a fine game and only after a hard fight did the Phi Gams gain the upper edge in the second half which they never relinquished. Fox was high point man for the losers with seven points. Gregory, Alpha Delta showed fine floor work while Jacobs played a great part in preventing a number of Phi baskets. G. Taggart was individual high point man with eleven points while he played guard position to perfection on the offense. Miller, his running mate, played a great game on defense. This game decided the playoff on the tie for third place. Now when the Phi Delta and Theta Nus meet in their championship tilt, the loser of this game will go into a double tie for second place with the Phi Gams providing they win their own game.

GIRLS PLAY EXCITING BASKETBALL GAME IN MENS' GYM

Last Tuesday evening the girls basketball players provided the thrill of the season when two picked teams of the advanced basketball classes met to decide the championship. The final score was 16-15 in favor of the Black contingent. However, rivalry was intense and for the greater part of the second half it appeared as if the Red team would manage to emerge victorious.

A large crowd was present and if one can gather from the cheering demonstrated the girls had a lot of masculine admirers that evening. At least during the entire second half the crowd was on its feet urging their team on to victory.

PANTHERS MEET IND.

CENTRAL FRIDAY

STRONG AND HARD-FOUGHT CONTEST EXPECTED IN SECOND HOME GAME

Friday night the students will get their second opportunity of the current season to see the Panthers in action on their own floor. Hanover will be host to the invading five of Indiana Central College, Indianapolis. The present standing of the Greyhounds does not warrant the fact that they will be a dangerous opponent having won two and lost two. However their two victories have been over Huntington and Oakland City, having lost close games to Franklin and Ball State Teachers College. The Panthers, themselves, are moving along quite rapidly with the best defensive record of any team in the state and ranking fourth or fifth among offensive groups, being rated with teams that have played nine and ten games instead of five.

The probable lineup will be the usual five. Cap. Telle, Andy center, has a slight foot injury as a result of the Transy victory, but with the rest that it has been having this past week, it will be in shape for the game. Others expected to get the call for duty during sometime of the game are Cooperider, McNulty, and Nicely.

Coach Money has been scrimmaging the team a great deal lately in order to practice with various combinations. However the first five composed of veterans, will in all probability start the initial bombardment that will make five out of six.

COUNTY TOURNEY

Saturday, January 11, the fourth annual Jefferson county basketball tourney was held at the Brown gym. All of the sessions were attended by large crowds, and it was considered a success in financial as well as in a sporting way. Practically all of the games were closely contested and the winning teams earned their victories. Central of Rykers' Ridge beat N. Madison in the finals to win the tournament.

Since its victory over Madison the Wildcat quintette had been considered strong medicine, but few fans had picked it for a tourney winner. Central has always heretofore been ignored when strong county teams were discussed. Therefore, Coach Dais is doubling deserving of praise for having coached his boys into a county tourney trophy.

Of the Big Three, Madison, North Madison and Dupont, North Madison probably made the best showing. Madison defeated Hanover with surprising ease, but lost to North Madison after leading by a wide margin in the first half of the game. Dupont a team usually regarded as being dangerous, was outclassed by Central in the second game of the morning session. After defeating Madison, Northtown put up a fine scrap against Central in the finals. Although Deputy and Saluda were never in a position to make any of the other teams nervous, still they made a good showing.

When Central defeated Madison on January 4, most of the fans regarded it as only a momentary flash. However, in every one of their games in the tourney the Ridge boys showed that they have arrived with the intention of staying. Oaks has been called the star of the team, but Central showed how strong she really was when she beat Northtown in the overtime with the so-called star out on fouls. On the other hand, North Madison's aggression seems to pivot around Jackson. When he was forced to the bench their hopes of winning apparently went with him.

The spirit displayed by all of the students of the student schools was admirable. No team could put in a complaint of non support from their student body. A more excellent group of fan leaders was never before assembled in our gym. Dupont, especially, is to be congratulated on her excellent cheer.

The announcement was made early this week that this year's sectional tournament is to be held in Madison. The county tournament and more than determine the champion team of the county. It assembled as one of the teams of the county and gave the fans a chance to make a comparison of the strength and weakness of each. It gave the fans an insight as to what might be expected in the sectional tournament. This does not mean that all of the teams will play the same brand of ball, then as on this previous occasion. In fact, we sincerely hope that they will not. However, prospects look good for an exciting time, and also for one of the teams from this county to make the trip to the sectional tournament.

MADISON GETS

SECTIONAL TOURNEY

Word was received last week that the Sectional Tournament would be held in Madison. There are to be 15 teams in the tournament which will make it one of the largest sectionals in Indiana.

The teams are Patriot, Vevay, Paris Crossing, Loett, San Jacinto, Little York, Austin, Scottsburg, Deputy, Saluda, Hanover, Dupont, Central, North Madison and last but not least Madison.

According to dope Scottsburg is the only out of county team that will seriously trouble Jefferson county's "Big Four" Central, North Madison, Madison and Dupont. However, Vevay and Austin should make somebody work plenty hard.

If the dope works out, as it did in the County Tournament, the Sectional will either go to Scottsburg or Central. Nevertheless Madison, North Madison, Dupont, Vevay, and Austin must still be considered. Another thing, the Madison-North Madison and the Madison-Scottsburg games are to be played yet and they may put a different outlook on things.

The drawings for the schedule will probably take place the Saturday before the tournament.

Since the Sectional is to be so big this year, there will very likely be games all day Friday as well as Saturday instead of only Friday afternoon and night as is usually done. The extra teams will give the fans in this section an opportunity to see a lot of basketball for their money and really enjoy it, since the posts will be out of the gym by that time.
