

STUDENTS' ENJOY ANNUAL BOAT RIDE

CONTRACT GIVEN
FOR REMODELINGOF CLASSIC HALL THIS SUM-MER

The trustees of Hanover college meeting here Tuesday authorized the building and grounds committee to sign contracts for the rejuvenation of Classic Hall heard reports of committees and elected Mrs. L. G. Ellingham, Pt Wayne, to fill a vacancy on the board.

Classic Hall, the original college building about which the institution centers, was built in the late 1840's and is regarded as an extraordinary example of college architecture of that day.

To students of the past century it was the "college" and the intention of the board is to restore it to its original condition, preserve the old structure and to finish up rooms which are now soon will be needed for classrooms as well as to remove the college offices from the library, to the main building and relieve the library of pressing congestion.

Plans for this work have been drawn by Burns and James, Indianapolis architects and engineers.

The most notable changes in Classic hall will be in the installation of a balcony in the chapel which will give that room a seating capacity of some 500 people, new entrances at the rear of the building an administrative wing on the south end of the ground floor, conversion of the old library or high school room on the second floor into two class room and an art room on the third floor.

Lounges for students and improved lavatories will be placed in the basement floor of the building and rooms now used for storage will be converted into class rooms. A new corridor will be opened up on this floor and a storage for books and papers and a fire proof vault for valuable papers will also be added.

All rooms and corridors on the ground floor will also be redecorated and a study for students and a lounge for the men faculty members will be provided.

On the second floor the redecorating process will continue, the chapel will be improved, the old library made into two class rooms and studies and lounge for women faculty members will be installed.

The third floor art room will

BROWN TO SPEAK

Dr. A. G. Parker, Jr., president of the college, announced recently the receipt of a letter from George William Brown, general secretary of the American Bible Society who is to present a new bible to the College Chapel in behalf of the society. Dr. Brown is a personal friend of Dr. Parker and it was through the latter's initiative that the needed gift was tendered.

Although absolute confirmation is lacking it is expected that the donor will speak in chapel next Thursday morning with the subject of his address being, "Is the Bible Adequate for 1932?"

PHI DELTA THETA
ANNUAL BOAT RIDE

HELD ON "CITY OF MEMPHIS"

The annual boat ride of Phi Delta Theta was held Friday night at eight o'clock on the Steamer "City of Memphis." Approximately 250 couples were on board, including Phi Delta from various chapters in the state and guests of the local chapter. The dance was properly chaperoned as all the members of the faculty and their wives attended. The dance was a complete success according to comments from the attending guests. Besides the music for the dance which was furnished by the Memphis Serranaders, a vaudeville bill composed of seven acts was presented. The arrangement for the dance were made by a committee composed of Dale Guyer, Dillon Herzer and Allan Cooper.

CITY OF MEMPHIS IS BOAT FOR FETE

MANY GUESTS ATTEND.

"Midst the blast of steamer whistles and the shrill shriek of a blaring calliope on the top deck of the river steamer "City of Memphis," the annual All-College boat excursion cast off from the Hanover beach dock at shortly after eight o'clock this morning and steamed out onto the broad surface of the rolling Ohio.

Overcast skies and slight flurries of rain in the early morning failed to dampen the spirits of some five hundred students, faculty members, and guests, who lined the rails of the boat as it moved slowly away from the shore. Although the day seemed in direct contrast, at an early hour, to the pilgrimage made last year, everyone seemed imbued with the carnival spirit and soor groups were scattering over the "Memphis," exploring its innermost secrets.

The ship measures some two hundred feet in length and is constructed with three decks. On the middle deck a long dance floor, the width of the boat, furnished ample room for all those who wished to avail themselves of the extraordinarily good orchestra. Cy Rhinehart and his orchestra were booked to furnish the dance music although the special report sent from the "Memphis" to the Triangle office did not confirm this statement.

A feature of the ride was the vaudeville acts which were given on the stage at one side of the dance floor. These were reported to be especially good.

At noon, a number of foreseeing students opened up packages of picnic lunches while their less fortunate colleagues were forced to part with their shekels in order to quench a growing appetite, which many found to be particularly rejuvenating during a boat ride.

Of course, the usual number of games of skill were on board; which, after inserting the necessary nickel or dime, the sport loving Hanoverians exhibited their prowess or luck as the case might be.

A variety of costumes were presented to our Society reporter. A number of snappy sport dresses were worn by the girls. Some showed a leaning toward white or light dress. A few were hats which were quite similar to the latest.

Leisure

"Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime
And departing, leave behind us
Footsteps in the sands of time."

There seems to be a tendency among college students to fritter away their time, instead of spending it for the furthering of worth while projects. If one desires to make a name for oneself, he can't waste even a few precious moments. Otherwise no one will ever know that he passed that way. All of us have idealistic moments, when we wish that we could leave "footsteps in the sands of time, for others to notice and admire. When one is dressed with such a feeling, the thing to do is to act immediately.

Set your goal, and start then and there, climbing toward it. Persevere and success is sure to be yours. It won't be easy to attain, but when once you gain it you will be well repaid for your arduous efforts.

Right here, in our college are students who will never make much of themselves, unless they change their ways, and buckle down to some constructive work. The only one you fool, when you go to class without your lesson is yourself. The professor still draws his pay, whether you learn anything or not. On the other hand, there are many here who will undoubtedly become prominent in their after life, because of good habits, and ideals that they have developed in their college career. Why not ally yourself with this latter group, "it is never too late to mend," you know.

That Despicable Jew

That despicable Jew! Does he deserve all the coals of fire that are heaped upon his head? Is he unduly proud of his heritage?

That strange race of men have wandered above the earth, beaten, despised and rejected, yet, in spite all lives on and on. For thirty centuries and more, the Jew has seen empires flourish and crumble—races rise and wane

With their kings and priests, their tyrants and princelings, they have marched over him in vainglorious pride—only to fall and die by the roadside.

But the Jew still lives on. Obstinately he fights his way thru out the world—alone, keeping all his own counsel, cherishing his own dream, living his own life in his own way.

A strange race of men it has been—and strange it remains. A stranger story than that of his life, no tongue has ever recounted.

The Jew does not appeal to himself, but the glory of his past is traced by the finger of God on the banks of the stream of history.

To understand the Jew thoroughly ask Miss Fitton for this book "Stranger Than Fiction" by Lewis Browne and read this melodramatic account of the persistence of this race of people.

Four More Weeks

Four more weeks! What is your connotation of that? Are you jubilant at its shortness or saddened at the thought of the nearness of the approaching end.

Glad eh? why, hasn't the year been all you could wish? If it hasn't, Hanover's sorry. She wants you to come here enjoy yourself and leave with a love in your heart for the old place. Are you sure? Is it distastefulness of Hanover or the absence of a home town sweetheart? If that is the lacking element, we wish you a happy summer in that magnetic presence. Perhaps it is homesickness. If so, that's a good thing. Absence sure puts real value to the love of father and mother.

What about you? Yes, I see how you feel. I'm sorry I made you cry. Maybe he'll come to see you. You've enjoyed during this winter. May you come back next year and have still more.

What about you who are leaving Hanover this year? What does your heart hold for your alma mater? We hope you have a genuine love there for her. You are going into the world as an adult to earn your living. We want you to go remembering Hanover as a scene of much enjoyment. The time you spend in school should be the happiest of your life. We hope you can remember it that way.

Most of us can and do love "the college on the banks of the Ohio." We're sorry for those who don't—sorry because Hanover wants every student to thoroughly enjoy his stay here. Have you?

Do You Know?

Do you know Hanover has a baseball team? Do you know it has won seven out of the last nine games? Do you know it is making a higher record of victories than any other Hanover team for some years? Do you know that it has not had full student support? Do you realize that when the diamond men win a game they are as important as the football gridders or the basketball hardwood men?

Perhaps some of you would answer no to these questions. A select minority would reply in the affirmative.

When our college engages in any inter collegiate activity the full cooperation of the entire student body is desired. An athlete needs stimulation from the sidelines. He plays better under the impetus of a cheering home crowd.

Remember, baseball is recognized to be the great American pastime. It is as interesting for spectator as participant. Remember that we are engaging on the diamond some of the best college in our class. The ancient rivalry between Franklin and Hanover has been revived. If for no other reason, we should support our college baseball team against Franklin.

This article is not sponsored by any member of the athletic department. They will do their share with or without your help.

Next week we start an intensive home schedule. Give the boys a break and be there on the sidelines and help them out with the old vocal chords.

We always have supported college endeavors. Let's show C. V. and the baseball men that we will support them also! Be out next week! It's free!

Training and Morale

Morale is defined as an intangible, mental virtue. It is a state of mind which makes easiness loafing and cowardice impossible. It is the bodily and mental attitude that makes a person fit for any task. Keeping up moral during the tough spots of a game gives a feeling of superiority to the player and makes his efforts seem masterful, dominant and organized, not only himself but to the opposing team.

In another sense morale may be called the measure of the quality of a man. Morale determines how long a pitcher can stay calm with three men on base; how long a server can keep cutting the corner of a court with the set score 5-2 against him; how long any athlete can carry on with whole soul vigor when he becomes short of wind, when his ribs begin to hurt, his knees become weak and the bleachers become quiet.

Morale is quality if mind just as pep or condition is a quality of the body. It is a mental condition and it is marked by a never failing ability to come back. It is a synonym for whole-heartedness or dauntlessness. Morale is physical and mental integrity and the mind and body are compact and solid.

Morale should not be confused with bullheaded stubbornness, or confidence. When a team is merely stubborn, it is on the defense, and hangs on doggedly, but a team with high morale, even in defeat, never loses spirit, and is able to stage a rally and win in the last minute.

Training is a vital factor in morale, because morale depends on sound bodily health and physical fitness. Good physical shape is one of the foundations of mental spiritedness. Training is absolutely necessary to keep the body and mind in the tip-top shape necessary for high morale. A player who secretly breaks training has a guilty conscience, and at a crucial moment he will fall to come through. Player know, whether they do not train as they should, it affects their mental attitude.

Perhaps no one else knows that a player is not keeping training, but he keeps remembering it and it works on his nerves and makes him unfit to do his best. This completely destroys morale and his effort seem discouraged and that must be in shape to meet any situation which may arise and to be in shape, in the fullest meaning of the word, he must train. Therefore, training is essential to morale.

Without training, a spirit of momentary zeal may be worked up but it is not true morale.

Mary Ellen Coopes, William Etherton of North Madison, Irma Dean, Dorothy Miles, William Fuller and Ray Manauagh attended the Derby.

We Old Philosopher

Slowly Folks,

As I look toward these last few weeks of my college life I often wonder how well equipped I am for the world I have to face after getting out. In thinking over the requirements that must be met in this time when competition is so keen it seems that the manhood demand is greater, the will-power demanded is greater, in fact the entire training demanded is greater. These are the things I hope I have gotten out of my college career.

Every once in a while a fellow will get new slants on how to show his affection for a member of the opposite sex. The other day in the show I happened to see one of the fellows on the campus bite his girl on the shoulder. Maybe she liked it, who knows?

Did you ever have the experience of hiding something or putting away for safe keeping and then when you wanted it most not being able to find it. If you never have you might ask Dr. Martin what it feels like not to be able to find a hundred foot steel tape line.

A great many young fellows are looking for ways to earn their way through school. In hygiene the other day someone told of a fellow selling his blood by the pint. Someone else then told of a young fellow who had sold his body to a medical school receiving a certain amount for it with the understanding that when he died the school should receive his body for experiments. There are no end of ways of making money.

You know it's a lot easier to notice the other fellow's faults than it is your own. A fault that a good many of us are guilty of though, is that of showing off in front of the crowd, working for the approval of the audience. Usually, however, one who tries to show off is laughed at while one who does his best without a thought of the crowd, receives notice and the self-satisfaction of having done his best.

Just Another Story

There used to be a ticket seller with the old Yankee Robertson circus who owned a big green parrot. The parrot perched swung from the roof of the ticket wagon and there the bird would sit just above her owner's head.

The ticket man had a line of patter which he constantly chanted as the patrons surged in front of his wicket twice on each week day of the season—before the afternoon performance.

"Don't shove, friends!" he would say. "Don't crowd! Take your time. Give everybody a chance!" The parrot memorized this speech. She even learned to mimic her master's exact tone. Repeating his admonition was a favorite part of her repertoire.

One afternoon when business was over he went away, forgetting to close the slide on his window. When he returned a little later his pet was gone. Immediately he organized a search party to look for his truant bird.

Half a mile distant from the show lot in a field, he found Pol. She was reared back on the ground, practically featherless. About her circled and swirled great flock of crows, cawing joyously. Every instant nearly, one of the crows, twisting out of the circle would dart down and pluck a souvenir of green plumage from the disheveled alien.

And each time this happened For Pol, in a beautiful imitation of her owner's voice and accent would shriek out:

"Don't shove, friends! Take your time! Don't crowd! Give everybody a chance!"

Campus Opinion

QUESTION:

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE 1932 REVONAH?

I think the Revonah is o. k. however; I would suggest a better printer for next year's book. Believe the book could be modernized more too. The write ups were very good.

Spitzl.

Every college should have an annual, but Hanover has built up so much lately that next year, I think it should be much larger. The photography could be greatly improved.

Amos Zilch.

My opinion is that the opening section of this year's Revonah far surpassed many of the former publications; quality was also shown in the write ups. Of course it wasn't perfect; far from it, perhaps, but nevertheless it's a good book with some new and good ideas. My congratulations go to its editor.

Albert Platt.

The editors of the Revonah are to be congratulated upon their good work. It is a neat, compact and pleasing publication. It will be a difficult task to publish a year book to excel the Revonah of 1932.

Loren Martin.

This year's Revonah could be summed up with the simple phrase of "pleasingly different." It shows more work than any of its predecessors. The editor and his staff should be complimented and given a rising vote of thanks by the student body as well as the faculty for an annual so well depicting student life at Hanover College.

B. W. Platt.

JEAN MONTGOMERY WINS IN CONTEST.

Jean Montgomery was the winner in a declamation contest Friday May 6th, which included entrants from most of the schools in Monroe county. The contest was held in the Bloomington high school gymnasium which was filled with an enthusiastic audience for the occasion. Following the contest, several groups in costume danced the Virginia Reel and other old time dances. The high school faculty in colonial costume and the Red Men's Lodge were winning groups in this event.

MRS. MONTGOMERY TO TEACH IN MADISON

Mrs. Frank S. Montgomery has accepted the position of supervision of music in the Madison schools for this coming year. Mrs. Montgomery completed work on her Bachelor of Music from the Louisville Conservatory last semester and is doing graduate work on her M. A. in music at University of Indiana this semester.

Wilma Tomey, Henry Coombs and Hallene Hunter spent last Friday and Saturday with the latter's parents in Louisville where they attended the Kentucky Derby.

PANTHERS WIN FROM OAK TEAM

LOSE TO FRANKLIN NINE

The baseball team split even during the last week, winning one game and losing one.

Last Friday the Panthers journeyed to Oakland City and trounced the Oaks 10-5 to avenge an early season defeat. Harrell went the route for Hanover and kept Oakland City hits well scattered.

Tuesday the Money men traveled to Franklin and were defeated 4-3 in a ten inning game. Staples pitched a fine game for the Panthers but Franklin managed to shove over the winning run in the 10th with two singles and on error.

SPORTS EXCHANGE

Now since the Derby is over the "big guns" still continue their work, but the smaller ones who lost—well, they are down and out. In case you would like to know who won the Derby you might do two things: Ask Graham McNamee or see Billie Tomney.

Two teams from the Indiana basketball varsity played a game recently under the new rules. Six points of interest were noticed. Here they are:

1. The game will be much faster.
2. It will take eight men to win a hard ball game.
3. The men will have to keep themselves in much better condition.
4. The coach will have to develop more men who can shift, block and pass.
5. It looks like the day of the big "boy" player has gone. The small man will be good with the new system.
6. As yet they don't know how

There are many Olympic prospects at present, but there are two outstanding men who should be mentioned. First of these is the slim, bespectacled Eastman who recently broke the world record for the four-forty yard dash.

Then there is Jim Bauch—the big man of last year's Big Six conference. He only won firsts in the javelin, shot put, and pole vault in the Big Six conference meet. I believe he has the right to a leg on the "Whattaman" trophy.

The 'Rajah' must be feeding the Cubs on Ballyhoos new neru chewing gum in place of Wrigley's dentline. Anyway his ball club is quite the neru.

TENNIS TEAM DEFEATED BY EARLHAM 5-2

The Hanover tennis team fell before Earlham Saturday by a 5-2 score.

Evans and Smythe turned in victories in their singles matches to score Hanover's only points. Malsbary, Karnell, and Stewart were defeated in singles and Malsbary and Karnell lost their doubles match. Evans and Stewart also lost their doubles.

The Panthers were scheduled to meet the North Vernon Athletic Club there last Tuesday but the match was postponed on account of rain.

Dime Day

Don't forget Dime Day, May 13 and 14. Due to the general depression and the number of unemployed, the minimum wage has been reduced to thirty cents. However, don't forget that there is to be a prize awarded to the most industrious person. Also don't forget that the proceeds are to go to that worthy organization W. A. A. Do your bit for her cause and seek employment.

For further information see Viola Rueff, chairman of the employment agency who has her headquarters in Office 54, College Point House.

Success of May Day

Once again May Day received a lengthy write up in Hanover College history but before we can put it out of our minds let us see who was responsible for the immense success of that great day.

In the first place you didn't know that a little band of Hanoverians arose at 5:30 a. m. to gather boughs and flowers for the queen's court. They were the decoration committee lead by Viola Rueff and Margaret Rea. Their helpers were: Dorothy Archbald, Leota Fenwick, Cecelia Smith, Dorothy Munk, Virginia Richey and Maud Mark. This committee had sufficient aid from William Faulds, Eller Lutes, Loren Martin, Raymond Hinds and Herman Allen.

Do you remember the attractive costumes worn by all who participated? They were bought and handled by the costume committee whose leader was Grace Nixon. Her committee consisted of Dorothy Breeding and Evelyn Gardner.

Wasn't the music just what was needed for the completion of the setting? The music committee composed of Marthanne Hinchshaw, Thelma Miller and Dorothy Humphrey, led by Lorena Ryman worked hard to obtain the special music of the soloist, Mrs. Faith Olmstead, who is in charge of music at Cragmont. She sang

"May Day" by R. H. Walther and "Voices of the Wood" by Watson, and was accompanied on the piano by Charles Butler. There were also some beautiful numbers by the girls glee club and Professor Poland offered some enjoyable violin solos.

Then we must not forget the May Queen, Ruth Mathews, Cried Dan Lewis, chancellor, Walter Bright; trumpeter, Forrest Couch and Gordon Karnell; jester, William Smythe and the entire Queen's court, including Frankie Guthrie, the crown bearer, and the songs by Jane Parker and Katherine Wickwire.

Mildred Dugan deserves the credit for the tumbler's number and Mabel Raney trained the May Pale dancers. The other dances were trained by Miss Mitchell.

Publicity for May Day was taken care of by that committee consisting of Mary Frances Hale, Caroline McKay, whose chairman, was Lois von Dahm.

Last but far from least was the wonderful picnic lunch served on the campus.

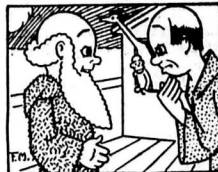

Margaret Rogers' food committee consisted of Jane Hummel, Thelma Ernst, Verna Watson, Lorraine Kee and Virginia Corya and was assisted by the various houses on the campus besides the help from the Y. M. C. A. who furnished the ice cream.

Have we forgotten to give any on credit where credit is due? Well, I should say we have! What about the plans for May Day? Of course no one thinks of all the work of planning for everything Mrs. Barker gave her individual time to the most minute details. She is also the one who informed the weatherman, too, so we extend double thanks to her.

All in all, we had a marvelous May Day, didn't we? Others are to come so remember the success of this one and try to out do it next time.

BARBER'S BOILER BURSTS BRINGING BLAZE

The first fire of the spring season was successfully staged Thursday morning at the Stevenson Barber Shop located in the heart of the Hanover business district. Little damage was done although pandemonium reigned for about half an hour.

The event was very generously attended with representatives from each of the four fraternities and two sororities playing important roles as interested spectators. Although the gasoline stove, used to heat the water in the shop, decided to explode at the unheard hour of seven a. m. still it was only a very short time before multitudes of hastily dressed collegians arrived.

The local fire-fighting apparatus responded nobly, and with Bill Lawson at the helm, it cruised majestically around the corner and drew pantingly to a halt in front of the tonsorial parlor. By that time the fire was nearly under control and with the aid of the dauntless fire-fighters the blaze was quickly brought to an end.

A high light of the morning has since been uncovered. It is said that Sam Ward sleepily heard the fire siren and, mistaking it for the noon whistle, said, despairingly, "My Gosh! I've missed morning classes."

Quite a few records for rapid dressing were established by excited fellows. Several were seen without shirts and a number had failed to tie the loose shoe-strings. Other stages of disarray were also noted.

It is not known as yet whether "Steve" will come out with a new fire sale range of prices, but it is presumed that he will.

The boat presented a magnificent appearance to the guests looking down on it from the top of the hill. All illuminated with gaily colored lights it seemed to glisten with the spirit of summer and bring back to memory the old days of the show boat when the melodies and familiar notes of the calypso were wafted from its decks. All in all it presented a fitting appearance for a wonderful occasion.

The gym, beautifully decorated in rose and white, the colors of the sorority diffused lighting; the swish of the coeds' dresses swaying to the rhythm of the music furnished by the Royal Dictators all lent to the occasion an atmosphere altogether charming and delightful.

PROBLEM BROUGHT FORTH; Y. RETREAT

NEW PLANS ARE FORMULATED.

Various collegiate problems were discussed at the Y. M. C. A. retreat held at Camp Erns according to William Faulds, president of that organization.

The problems for discussion were the following: For the Y; sponsor three chapel programs each semester; to have three discussion groups under the sponsorship of three professors at various fraternity houses in order that more students would attend; that a meeting would be held on Sunday night a month in which the Y. M. C. A. could attend and to invite an outside speaker to the occasion. A program was decided to interest incoming freshmen in Y activities. A committee was appointed to look into the possibilities of a series of dance and social events to which the entire student body would come. A suitable observance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the first Y building in the country was proposed.

After these problems were considered there was a short discussion on the Y conference to be held at Lake Geneva this summer. At a recent cabinet meeting it was decided to postpone the meetings for the rest of the year.

Among the men, spring suits, varied with white flannels for first honors while sport oxfords were practically unanimous. As was expected, very few head pieces were exhibited. Altogether the crowd rivalled the Doves in variety and color of costume.

A slight flurry of excitement was caused on the port side of the boat shortly after noon when a student was reported to have fallen or dived overboard. This could not be confirmed and a later check showed no one missing. Some slight anxiety was felt among a few that the missing person might have been a visitor but it is now thought that the report was merely a sensational rumor without a basis of fact.

As the Triangle went to press the "Memphis" was approaching the Hanover dock marking the end of the ride. Already plans were being formulated for the Phi Delta boat dance to take place tonight.

MORE BOOKS DRAWN OUT OF LIBRARY

20 PER CENT INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR.

The library circulation increased more than twenty per cent the first semester this year over the first semester of last year while in its turn showed an increase of 43 per cent over the first semester of 1929-30, according to figures recently released by Miss Fitton, the librarian.

A proof of the fact that student mentality is proving increasingly serious is found in the fact that while non-fiction almost doubled its circulation last semester fiction fell off more than 20 per cent.

Miss Fitton has been here for four years, and with the aid of a double library fund, she and Mr. Lee have built up the library and circulation to a degree which Hanover is proud.

The use of reserve books has fallen off a little this year, but increase in non-fiction and magazines has more than made up this deficiency.

The second semester circulation this year is far behind the second semester of last year. Whether this is due to lazy weather or decrease in need of information is not known, but examination and term paper time has already begun to increase the circulation of serious books in leaps and bounds.
