COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM

ANNOUNCED IN CHAPEL

Opens With Academy Play on June 1st

DR. WILEY AND MR. HOLLIDAY TO SPEAK

President Millis announced to the student body in chapel Monday the schedule for the 1917 Commencement. From all indications, he said, this will be the biggest and best in the history of Hanover. Nearly a hundred alumni have signified their intentions of returning to the old College for the big week and many more are yet to be heard from. Class, chapter and club reunions will be the program for the entire week.

On Friday night, June 1st, the Academy Seniors will give their class play, "The Man on the Box." This will be the opening to the great finale of the 1916-17 year. A week later the Senior Academy students will be graduated, the first affair of the regular Commencement Week.

The following evening the annual Oratorical Contest will be held in the Presbyterian Church, the winner of which will represent Hanover College in the state contest next winter. On Sunday morning, June 10th, the College Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by President W. A. Millis. In the evening of the same day he will address the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. in joint meeting.

At 9:30 Monday morning the Annual Field and Track meet and Tennis Tournament will be held. At 8:00 o'clock that evening in the gymnasium the Senior class will present its play.

On Tuesday morning Dr. Harvey W. Wiley will deliver the address at the unveiling of the Dr. Garritt portrait in the Thomas A. Hendricks Library. This will be the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. Wiley's graduation and all the living members of the class will make special efforts to attend. In the afternoon Dr. Ballard will deliver the inaugural address at the founding of the Garritt Chair of English Bible.

On Tuesday morning the literary societies will present their diplomas and hold their reunion meetings. At 5:00 o'clock that afternoon the alumni dinner will be held and at 8:00 o'clock the Alumni Reunion.

On Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock the year will come to a close when the College commencement address will be delivered by Mr. John H. Holliday '64 and the diplomas will be presented.

L. L. Huber, registrar, is visiting the Kentucky State University at Lexington, Kentucky.

MILITARY TRAINING PROVES

POPULAR AT HANOVER

Lieutenant Cope Directs Training

Military training is advancing in full swing at present. The fellows like it better every day and only a very small number have had cold feet and dropped from the ranks. Lieutenant Cope of Madison was out Monday afternoon and took the kinks out of the line. He gave the fellows a few pointers that will be a great help to them in the rest of their work.

He also gave them a lecture at the wind up and tried to take out of their heads the idea of becoming a soldier in two or three short weeks. He said it would be impossible for them to accomplish much more than the rudiments of marching. Dr. Carl Henning has been faithful in rendering his services, and he has had sufficient military training to handle men at this stage of training. Robert J. Millis '16 was drill master Thursday afternoon in place of Coach Rider who was busily engaged in preparation for "Strongheart."

ST. XAVIERS HERE TUESDAY

With a week and a half's energy stored up in their systems the Hanover College baseball team will battle with St. Xavier's College of Cincinnati on next Tuesday. This will mark the first meeting of these two teams and Hanover is going to make it worth remembering. As the team had no game last week they have had plenty of time for recuperation after the battle with St. Mary's and intend to put all they have into this one for "Old Hanover."

Coach has been putting the men thru some much needed batting practice and from the way the "pill" has been flying around the lot it looks bad for the Saints' pitching staff. Captain Culley, who had his finger broken in the first game of the St. Mary's schedule will probably be at his position at short. The rest of the squad are in fine shape and will make the Saints hurry to get anything thru them.

The probable lineup will be as following: Matthews, C; James, P; Culley, S; Paulus, 1B; Hollmeyer, 2B; Clapp, 3B; R. McNulty, Brett, Smith, Field.

Carl Smith, Syl Paulus, Justice Huntley, Francis Taggart, Esther Wray, George Amick and Albert Clapp are taking in a dance at New Washington tonight,

SENIOR PREPS WIN

TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Jas. VanAntwerp and R. Sutherland Star

PREPS READY FOR VEVAY

The Academy students held an inter-class track and field meet Tuesday and Wednesday. This is the first time that the Academy has ever staged such an event and it showed that the preps are hard at work for a track team that will make some of the high schools get up and step to carry a meet from them.

The manager of the Academy track team is planning for a number of dual meets for this spring. One of their victims we understand is to be Vevay. They acknowledge their defeat in basketball last winter, but will grit their teeth and strain every muscle to get revenge on them in the track meet.

The individual star of the meet was Jas. VanAntwerp who won 40 points. However he had a close race for it with "Pud" Sutherland who won second place with 35½ points, tying in one event, while Archer Culbertson won third with 13 points.

The Academy boys as a whole are to be congratulated on the splendid effort and showing made in this two day track meet and are urged to keep up the work that they have started. The three first men are to be especially congratulated on their record since most of the events were made in the time required for membership in Sigma Delta Psi Fraternity. It is also said that some of the College track men would have to get up and step to make better time in some of the events.

The idea of the meet was not to find out the individual stars but simply to give Captain Jas. VanAntwerp an idea of who was who so that in case of a track meet he would know just where to place his men in order to secure the best results.

The order of events with the first, second and third winners in their order follows.

100 yd. dash—Sutherland, VanAntwerp, McDermitt.

Shot Put—Watts, VanAntwerp, Sutherland.

Low hurdles—VanAntwerp, C. Peak, Culbertson.

High jump—VanAntwerp, Culbertson, Taff.

440 yd. dash—Sutherland, VanAntwerp, Walker.

Broad jump—Sutherland, VanAntwerp, Culbertson.

1 mile run—Sutherland, P. King, VanAntwerp.

220 yd. dash—Sutherland, Van

"STRONGHEART" IS PLAYED

BEFORE PACKED HOUSE

Characters Well Portrayed

SANDINA BIG NOISE

At last! After four attempts "Strongheart" has been given before a Hanover audience. On Thursday night the Dramatic Club successfully staged the play which is considered the greatest of all college productions. It was given before a packed house and was well received by the audience. The caste was well trained in every detail and the characters were portrayed in excellent style. Prof. Souter, who drilled the caste, is especially deserving of praise for the excellent presentation.

The play is the story of an Indian's fight for equality. Strongheart (Sylvester Paulus) in an Indian chief learning the white man's wisdom at an eastern college. He is recognized socially, so long as he asks and takes nothing from his Caucasian friends. However, when he learns to love Dorothy Nelson (Jess Crntcher) his supposed friends turn from him. The love affair was woven into the play well and was ably carried out by the two leading characters.

Coach Rider and Earl Rogers did splendid work as Frank Nelson and Dick Livingston, respectively. As Thorne, the unscrupulous fellow who planned to sell out his team, Robert Wright won the sincere dislike of the audience. He carried his difficult role in good fashion.

The Molly Livingston (Mildred McKenna), Billy Saundes (Justice Huntley) and Sandina (Professor Beck's poodle) combination produced a delightful contrast to the heavier part. Miss McKenna and Mr. Huntley enacted their roles like stage veterans and Sandina showed evidence of a Hagenbeck-Wallace training. Mr. Huntley's work is especially commendable since he had only two weeks in which to commit and rehearse.

Prof. Souter as the Indian Black Eagle, was a veritable Mutjikeewis. Fitzgibbon, as Taylor, a lordly Sophomore, was fine, as was C. W. Orner in the part of Reade, an unsophisticated Freshman. From the realism in Ray Himebaugh's interpretation of the dissipated Ross, one might have concluded that he was truly in the habit of "getting into the way of too many draughts." Lewis Brett as Skinner, Alma Macdonnell as Betty, and Lucia Cruft as Maude, kept up the high standard of the caste. "Strongheart" may be classed as "a smart snappy play, built around an exceedingly clever plot."

A HANOVER TENDENCY

We have but to look around us to find evidence to substantiate the statement that there is a need of more formality among students at Hanover. The moment you get into town you feel it. There is all around a general tendency to "let down,"—slip into easy and careless ways.

A college education purposes to develop a man, to capacitate him to meet all phases of life. A college man is supposed to be refined and cultivated. Not only should he be able to solve a problem in the higher math and analyze a given chemical solution, but he should know how to talk to people, to dress, to eat and to act on all occasions. By this we do not mean that he should be taught to be stiff but he should be well versed in good manners.

The world expects gentleness and easiness in the college man and woman. He should not only have his logic in mind but should have a good working knowledge of etiquette. This is something which is distinctly lacking in Hanover. Social functions are all too informal. We believe that only a small fraction of one per cent of the knowledge of etiquette possessed in Hanover is really learned here and the remainder is learned and brot us from without.

We also believe that if more formal fuotions were introduced thrt they, in their place, would be as profitable as any course in the College. Of course this alone can not make real gentlemen and real ladies for the qualities which mark out such a person are not ones which can be developed in a few weeks. But it would give every-one who goes out from Hanover a stamp of refinement and knowledge which every college man and woman is expected to possess.

To offer some specific instances of what we mean: When on the street one seems to feel that there is no special reason why heshould be dressed in conventional street garb—everyone knows everyone else and knows that he will be understood as seeking comfort or perhaps as a trifle careless, but not as rude. Again, we hear loud talking and laughter on the street. If in the city of his home the individual would never think of making the same amount of noise. If he did there would be some wondering stares at him and some whispered comment.

Not long ago "nightie parades" seemed to be in order. What would a city think of that? They did not seem to care if they were seen, either, for they always were and das machte nichts. This practice may be extinct now but it is an indication of a general condition which still exists. We have heard of pajama serenades. In most places if a man was caught on the street in that condition of dress, or rather undress, he would be promptly put in jail or taken where he could be examined for insanity.

Perhaps this all grows out of the idea that youth must sow wild oats and we are therefore to overlook actions which are not up to the standard. Or perhaps it grows out of the idea that convention is a detriment, a nuisance and drag on progress, and that he who breaks with custom is original and therefore very much worth while. We will admit that there is a premium on originality—of the proper sort. Not all kinds tho. Lots of new ways to steal have been discovered in the past century, but that originality is not for the good of society. So it may be with this break. Perhaps it would be better to tolerate conventions with regard to certain thing.

We sometimes like to put on our old clothes once more and feel their comfort, but if they had on them the germs of a contagious disease we would not don them. So it is with these little niceties of dress, carriage on the street and in public places, etc. It may for the time being afford a comfortable feeling to disregard them but the habit of disregarding them is a fatal one. Without a knowledge os these very things which we now neglect we are, in society away from here, like one whom culture has never touched.

We plead for more formality in Hanover. Let each one ask himself this question: Am I in my everyday life doing those things which would reflect on good old Hanover College credit for developing in a person culture and refinement. If after analysis the answer is found to be "No," then for Hanover's sake and for your own—Change!

Mildred Tibbets, ex-18, of the Indiana State Library, was here as a visitor with her Phi Mu sisters Monday.

Mrs. S. W. Wray returned to her home in Crawfordsville Monday after a week-end with her daughter at the Point House.

HANOVER GRADUATE APPLYS FOR AVIATOR'S COMMISSION

Allan R. Ramsay Takes First Place

COLLEGIATE INTELLIGENCE BUREAU

President Millis has just received word that Allan R. Ramsay '14 has applied for a commission in the National Aviation Corps of the Eastern Coast. Mr. Ramsay is at present teaching in the Culver Military Academy at Culver, Indiana. Previously he taught in the township high school at DeKalb, Illinois.

This is the first definite step toward applying for a government commission by a Hanover man that has come to the ears of the College officials, the several undergraduates and professors have signified their intentions of showing their loyalty in the capacity of private, bugler, chaplain and what not.

Hanover College has enrolled itself as a member of the Collegiate Intelligence Bureau, an organization the purpose of which is to secure the names of all under and recent graduates of Hanover and other colleges who are available for particular phases of work. It is hoped that thru this bureau men will be found who are specially fitted as chemists, chauffeurs, men for secret service and the like. It will make it possible for college men to serve the country in their best capacity. Professors Woodworth and Huber and Doctor Carl Henning have charge of the work in Hanover.

ALUMNI NOTES

Eula Deputy '14 is teaching in a private school near Wilmington, North Carolina.

J. Clifton Brown '01 is head of the Minnesota Normal Schools at Stillwater, Minnesota.

Clarence Voris '14 has been retained by the Fairbury, Ill., High School for the coming year.

Harry Voris '12 has been named head of the mathematics department of the Sioux City, Iowa, H. S.

Rev. V. B. Demaree '00 has received a diploma and a degree of Bachelor of Law from the American Extension University, a correspondence school of Law at Los Angeles, California.

Frank Montgomery '11 of the Louisville Boy's High School is here spending Saturday and Sunday with his parents.

EFFORT AND GENIUS

There is scarcely any comparison in regard to the results obtained between effort and genius. In life's school it is the worker who gets the substantial results—not the genius. Undoubtedly you can think of some person who is considered a genius. In his school days he may be able to dash off an essay without any perceptible effort or recite a lesson without having scarcely studied it, or in debates, argue so effectively as to almost make one believe that black is white. Apparently there was nothing he could not do. In every respect he was a brilliant, talented and capable young man but for some reason, today we find him a complete failure.

In the same class we think of another fellow of almost the same age. This lad is not so quick and talented but easy-going, slow and thoughtful. He displays no especial brilliance in the class-room and in truth at times fails to make a good recitation and finds it hard to keep up with the class. He just keeps blodding along in his slow, easy way but at all times exerts effort in all things that he undertakes. Today we find him a successful business man.

Now what is the difference between these two men having the same number of years experience, trained along the same lines, educated in the same schools and enjoying the same advantages at home, that one should be a complete failure in business while the other has attained such brilliant success? Simply this: one depended upon the natural ability which carried him thru school while the other depended upon the constant effort and continual hard work.

Genius counts in life's battle's but unaided by intelligent and concentrated application it counts for naught. If one aspires to rise in the world, it pays to work hard, even tho without the talent, the possibilities for advancement are strong. But when possessed of the natural, latent possibility, there is absolutely no limit to the possibilities of future usefulness and service.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR WINNING TENNIS TEAM

Hanover Has Splendid Chance of Repeating
Last Year's Performance

The tennis season, so far as the Hanover team is concerned, is in full swing. Every afternoon of the past week the devotees of this sport have been working on the eight courts to get them in shape. Playing will start the first of next week.

Some schools in the state have boasted at different times of good players but none could ever compare with Hanover in respect to the number of good players. Hanover has not only always had one or two good players, but five or six. So the announcement of Allen Montgomery, a member of last year's winning team, that he will be unable to compete, while it is much to be regretted, does not entirely put a damper on Hanover's chances.

The annual spring tournament will start the middle of next week. The men fighting for positions are Manaugh, McNulty, Culley, Sutherland and Fitzgibbon. And at present it seems that it will be a close race, and the two who make the team will know that they have been thru something.

Manager Montgomery has been busy arranging a schedule. He has had considerable difficulty on account of the abolition of athletics and the substitution of military training in several school. But he has finally managed to arrange a first class schedule. The tentative schedule follows:

May 5—Franklin at Franklin.
May 12—Purdue at Lafayette.
May 19—Franklin at Hanover.
May 26—I. C. A. L.
June 2—State Tournament.

LOCALS

F. N. Hufford '17 and Elsie Hufford '19 were home for the funeral of their grandmother in Patriot.

Noble Hays, a prominent lawyer of Scottsburg and a former student here, visited the College on Friday.

LOCALS

The Freshman party scheduled for last night had to be postponed on account of the rain.

A splendid delegation of Madison people were out to see Strongheart Thursday.

Sandina, alias Sigfreid, will be rationed on honey and wafers for the next six months, with a little "tea" mixed in for good measure.

President Millis left Thursday on a business trip to Chicago.

The Girl's Glee Club is hard at work in preparation for the spring festival. Prof. Alexander is sure to make the affair successful.

The Rev. Aikman of Indianapolis filled the pulpit of the Hanover Presbyterian Church Sunday and also conducted the devotional services at chapel Monday.

Frieda Schelke, '19, of Madison, has recovered from a severe case of plant poisoning.

Philal had a very stormy session last Tuesday night.

Mr. Cope of Madison directed military training Monday afternoon.

William C. Culley suffered a broken finger in the game with St. Mary's last week.

A new combination electric dynamo has been installed in physics laboratory.

It is rumored that a new Ford is to take the place of old Togo.

Prof. Beck is teaching Sandina to swim. He says the water is fine now.

"Jimie" Craig ex-17 has joined the U. S. Army and is at present in the Muncie recruiting station.

Marietta Dickson of Earlham won the annual state peace oratorical contest.

The sororities at Franklin have given up all social functions as a war economic measure.
